

The Green Economics Institute

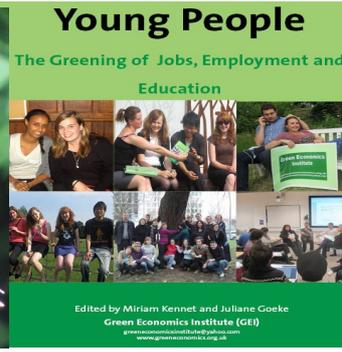

Brand New Educational Programmes and Courses for 2015

Dear Students, Scholars, Fellows, Prospective Interns and Work Experience Study Placement Applicants,

Many thanks for your interest in the Green Economics Institute

We are pleased to announce our exciting, innovative and brand new Educational Professional Programmes for 2015, including PhDs, Professional Qualifications & Apprenticeships.

Interns, scholars, work experience, authors, editors, researchers.

1. We are once again offering internships, studentships, scholar placements, writing, publishing, work experience, charity work and authorship internships as well as economics research and development, geography and biodiversity and energy and climate change. We also regularly have students who are from language courses, – as we need this for publishing and editing, and many from political economy or international relations. We enjoy having a varied, global and international cohort with much diversity. We are currently recruiting for the whole of 2015 for students for one, two or three months throughout the year. Please email us at greeneconomicseducation@yahoo.co.uk with your cv and a covering letter. Please ensure you state what interests you and what months you are free and also if you are funded or not. We do also take a lot of Erasmus and Leonardo students as well. Our students will be working on a mixture of writing, publishing books and academic and non academic writing, as well as running events, conferences and workshops of all kinds and presenting their ideas in a variety of settings in many different environments often in different countries or in parliaments or universities or sometimes in a field or in other unusual settings. (anywhere we get asked to speak or to teach, we take some of our students with us). We also take our students on field trips as well.

2. PhDs

*For the first time we are offering a Distinctive PHD pathway.

Just decided this month- our brand new programme in Manchester

a) Starting in 2016, we are once again also offering our PhD Programme in the UK

The South African Green Economics PHD will be very research orientated and will entail working closely with supervisors at the Green Economics Institute and we are offering a number of supervision and lectures and research orientations with our Institute.

Teaching on this programme will be innovative and much will be based around skype and remote learning to keep your costs as low as possible !

Both programmes have a start date of September /October 2016 They are likely to take 3 years to complete. If you would like to apply we are speaking to people this week so please email us asap and send a short cv and a project idea to us at greeneconomicseducation@yahoo.co.uk.

4. Short one day course Introduction to Green Economics at Oxford University May 2015

Once again we will be running our award winning one day short course. Introduction to Green Economics Participatory Learning Course, which we developed with the Higher Education Academy at Oxford University.

If you would like to participate please email us now to register your interest. We normally charge £90 a person per day for this course. All participants present on issues of interest to them. To attend this course please email greeneconomicsevents1@yahoo.co.uk or greeneconomicseducation@yahoo.co.uk

5 Professional Training Programmes

a) This year we will also be running a series of Professional Training Programmes, ranging from CPD continuous professional Development.

c) Additionally we will be running PHD workshops at our main Oxford University Conference in March 22nd – 25th 2015 for PHD students to discuss their work and research and to present to participants.

d) We will also be running Professional Qualification Exams -with letters after your name for those who want a professional qualification to use at work. “GE” Green Economist or “MGEI” Member of the Green Economics Institute. There will be an award ceremony announced to members. Please email greeneconomicsevents1@yahoo.co.uk to register your interest. We will be sending out conference information shortly with a booking form. We are looking forward very much to receiving you on our courses and look forward to your participation and life long learning.

Kind regards
